O'Neill Outlines Program For Ohio

COLUMBUS (P)—Gov. C. William O'Neill has handed the Ohio Legislature a partial blueprint of the state's immediate future. It does not, he declared flatly, include a state income tax.

Both houses of the Republican-controlled General Assembly greeted the new GOP governor warmly and listened attentively Monday night as he sketched a rosy picture in his "State-of-the-State" message. He observed it is not an idle daydream that Ohio may become "the leading state in the nation."

O'Neill dropped his "no-state-income-tax" remark unexpectedly into his prepared address. But he let it be known, both through his talk to legislators and an earlier press conference, that the two-year budget he will submit in mid-February will be balanced with present taxes.

Major sections of the 40-year-old governor's program spelled out Monday night called for:

A "crash" program under a special task force unit to build four-lane highways, including a north-south freeway, to link cities on the interstate system.

SPEEDY building of mental hospitals and intensive training of personnel to care for inmates plus help for retarded children.

Creation of a committee to consider care of the aged.

Creation of a committee on higher education within a month "to give definite leadership to our educational processes beyond the high school level."

Teamsters To Defy Policy Of AFL-CIO

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (P)—The giant teamsters union stood defiant today of a new AFL-CIO policy against union leaders invoking the Fifth Amendment to avoid testifying in labor racket probes.

The AFL-CIO policy, written by Federation President George Meany and endorsed by the AFL-CIO Executive Council, orders affiliated unions to oust any union official taking the Fifth Amendment "for his personal protection" in investigations by government committees.

"The policy is 100 per cent wrong," said Teamsters Union President Dave Beck. "It will come back to haunt the labor movement."

Beck declared that the teamsters will continue letting their officials "invoke the privileges of the Bill of Rights, without, by such act alone, subjecting themselves to trial or disciplinary action by our union."

Dulles Makes No Plans To Quit His Post

WASHINGTON (P)—Secretary of State Dulles is reported to have no intention of resigning despite mounting attacks on his handling of U. S. foreign policy.

Associates said today he has been somewhat stung by the sudden fury of assaults on him the last week during Senate hearings on President Eisenhower's Middle East resolution, but is nevertheless confident he can weather the storm.

He believes he has Eisenhower's continued backing and confidence, they said, as well as that of top Republican leaders in Congress. Some of these already have spoken up in his defense.

Despite verbal battering, the secretary, who underwent a major cancer operation less than three months ago, has suffered no apparent physical ill effects. He believes he has enough stamina to continue to direct policy.

U. N. Mid-East Debate Shelved

Solution Is Sought In Bitter Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (P)—The U.N. General Assembly prepared today to put its heated Middle East debate on ice for several days while delegates sought some solution to the Israeli-Egyptian deadlock.

Informed sources said the 80-nation Assembly planned to sidetrack the discussion after Russia and several Arab states have their say. The Russians were expected to press demands that Israel get out of Egypt and to oppose any plan to widen the scope of the U. N. Emergency Force.

Several British Commonwealth nations were reported seeking support for a plan to bolster Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld's efforts to get Israeli troops out of Egypt and broaden the duties of the U. N. force.

The plan gained impetus when the United States threw its support behind Hammarskjöld's efforts as spelled out in his detailed report.

Drought, Though Far Away, Shows Lessons In Soil

With accumulated rainfall running well ahead of last year's figures, and Winter's rain and snow turning streets and highways into freezing mush, the deep dangers of the Southwest's drought may seem far removed from Pickaway County. The word "drought" lacks full meaning here.

Nevertheless, the critical picture carried across the nation's "drought states" on hot and dusty winds is really a picture for all of America, and especially for American farmers everywhere.

With no letup in sight for the arid conditions now growing in the Southwest, the situation could gradually become a tremendous burden for agriculture in all the states.

And meanwhile, there is always the possibility that future years can bring a widespread expansion of the "dust bowl". The Pickaway County Soil Conservation Service works constantly to enlist the aid of local farmers in saving the district's farm soil.

The serious conditions in the Southwest are the subject of two articles The Herald is bringing its readers. For the first of these stories, turn to the back page in this issue.

Canton Slayer Slated For Trial

CANTON (P)—Nicholas M. Kostic, 39, has been pronounced mentally able to stand trial on a first-degree murder charge, but his attorneys say there will be no change in his plea of innocent by reason of insanity.

Kostic was indicted last June in the slaying of his estranged wife, Mary, 34, and Dr. H. P. Hart in Massillon. He was taken to Lima State Hospital for an examination after a sanity hearing.

The superintendent of the hospital, Dr. R. E. Bushong, told Common Pleas Judge Paul G. Weber Monday that Kostic has "made a mental recovery" and can stand trial.

Solons Schedule Review Of Policy

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees voted unanimously today to conduct a complete review of U. S. foreign policy in the Middle East over the last 11 years.

The vote was 30-0.

Senate GOP Leader Knowland (Calif.) and Sen. Wiley (Wis.), ranking Republican member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the White House and State Department had no objection to the inquiry.

The action apparently cleared the way for ultimate Senate adoption of a resolution giving President Eisenhower authority to use U. S. forces to combat any Communist aggression in the Middle East. The Eisenhower resolution would also authorize $200 million of aid to Mid-East nations.

The vote by the Senate committee came as the House began debate on the Eisenhower program with prospects of its approval in that body Wednesday.

Republican Leader Martin (Mass.) said he thought there was a chance, in fact, of a House vote late today.

KNOWLAND reported earlier in the day, after a conference of Representatives.

Army Introduces Its New Missile

NEW YORK (P)—The Army today announced a new guided missile, the LaCrosse, and showed movies of it.

Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, chief of Army research and development, described LaCrosse as "a deadly accurate missile for close tactical support of ground troops in the field."

A separate Army news release called it a "field artillery guided missile."

Gavin said: "LaCrosse is an all-weather guided missile capable of destroying enemy strong points in the field to supplement air or artillery attack."

Wilson Puts Foot In Mouth Again, This Time Against National Guard

WASHINGTON (P)—U. S. Secretary of Defense Wilson, he of "foot-in-mouth" fame, has done it again. This time, at least one congressman believes Wilson's target will get a boost. The defense chief's latest controversial remark concerned his statement about "draft dodging" in the National Guard.

Wilson touched off the new furor when he said it was "a sort of a scandal during the Korean War" that youths under 18 could enlist in the Guard "and not be drafted to fight in Korea."

Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh called the statement a "damn lie." Walsh, president of the National Guard Assn., said that many Guard units had served valiantly in Korea and that "not one of these young men was a draft dodger."

Bennett said Wilson's remark should clarify the issue because it "reveals a misunderstanding deep in the Department of Defense as to the ability of the National Guard to handle part of this training in its own program—in fact, it shows a deep misunderstanding of Guard accomplishments."

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader, suggested that Wilson apologize for his statement, saying it "casts a cloud upon all Americans who have served in the National Guard at great personal sacrifice."

General Walsh reported that during the Korean war, "we not only asked, but demanded" that the whole National Guard be mobilized.

"They did mobilize 37 per cent of the Army National Guard and 84.4 per cent of the Air Guard," he said. Of the guardsmen who were mobilized, he said, virtually all got to Korea.

In saying that a Guard enlistee was making himself liable for service, rather than evading it,

Ed Webb Cited Outstanding Young Man At Jaycee Fete

Cleveland Browns' Dante Lavelli Gives Main Address At Annual Banquet Attended By 100

Edgar M. Webb was chosen the outstanding young man of Pickaway County for 1956 last night at the annual Distinguished Service Award Banquet of the Circleville Jaycees, held in the First EUB service center on E. Main St.

Webb became the first Jaycee member to win the award since 1951.

The award was a closely guarded secret before the actual presentation was made by Dwight Steele, chairman of the judging committee. Webb, who had welcomed more than 100 Jaycees and their guests and had introduced the main speaker, Dante Lavelli, was unaware that he himself was to be presented with the award.

Lavelli, of the Cleveland Browns and one of professional football's all-time great ends, gave a talk and later answered questions on life in the professional grid game. He predicted that pro-football's popularity in Ohio and elsewhere would continue to rise, saying: "Attendance figures will be broken again next year."

"THERE ARE a lot of jobs open on our club next year and I expect to see a number of new faces," he said, in remarking on the Browns' prospects for next season. He also thought that it "would be pretty hard for any team from now on to win all 12, or even 11, of its games," because of the difficulty in keeping a team's mental attitude "up" every week of the season.

Lavelli said he doesn't think it is now possible for a team to win the pro championship without at least two good quarterbacks. He pointed out that in the years the Browns won their titles, they were lucky that Otto Graham was seldom injured, "and when he did get hurt, we always had Ratterman."

In presenting the Distinguished Service Award, Steele pointed out that it was not intended as recognition for contribution to the Jaycees, and that membership in the organization has no bearing on the selection of a winner. To be eligible for the award a young man must be between 21 and 36 years of age and a resident of Pickaway County.

Steele explained that nominees were judged 50 percent on contribution to community welfare during the year, 25 percent on evidence of leadership ability, and 25 percent on evidence of personal or business progress.

Concluding his presentation remarks, Steele said: "One of his most outstanding characteristics is a feeling of responsibility to his community. This feeling is generated into action in the person of Ed Webb. He is willing to stand and be heard in support of community improvement and worthy causes."

"His congenial manner prevents this action on his part from being obnoxious or oppressive. He will co-operate on any project with others when he is not a leader and help make the project a success."

WEBB, WHO lives at 109 Dun-

ED WEBB, past president of the Circleville Jaycees and energetic worker in behalf of many community ventures during the past few years, held the spotlight of honor last night at the annual Distinguished Service Award Banquet. He was named as the community's outstanding young man of the year. The dinner here climaxed the observance of Jaycee Week.

URBANA (P)—Larry Taylor, 20, of Dayton, was placed under police guard in a hospital here this morning. He was injured in an automobile accident two miles south of Urbana on U. S. 68 shortly after midnight.

State police said Freddie Lewis Egler, 19, also of Dayton, was killed in the single car accident. They said the car was reported stolen Monday night.

Stranded Rail Aides Drawing Overtime Pay

ALAMOSA, Colo. (P)—Collecting pay at overtime rates, 23 railroaders waited today in a tiny station atop 10,022-foot Cumbres Pass for a relief train to plow out 20-foot snowdrifts that have stranded them since Saturday.

The station is amply stocked with food and fuel, Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad officials said, and the men are receiving time and one-half pay for all hours beyond the first eight since they left Chama, N. M., Saturday.

The 23 were aboard a two-engine work train sent to clear snow from the narrow gauge branch line along the Colorado-New Mexico border. The train stalled near the summit of the pass.

A relief snowplow chugged up the pass from Chama Monday to release another stalled work train with 12 men aboard. The rescue train returned to Chama after failing to break through a snowslide clogged with rocks and trees a mile west of the summit.

more Road with his wife, the former Katherine Louise Bowsher and their two children, Michael, 4, and David, 2, was graduated in 1947 from Circleville High School. He was senior class vice-president and a member of Stooze and Hi Y.

He also won letters for his play on the football, baseball, basketball and track teams.

He worked for the Farm Bureau after graduation and then served two years in the army, in which he attended the clerks-typists school. His average of 98.6 was the highest ever attained at that time in the army school. After his discharge he went back to the Farm Bureau but later joined Clifton Motor Sales as office manager. He is now the firm's business manager and also served as secretary of the firm.

He has long been active in civic affairs, serving as past president of the Jaycees, 1955 treasurer of the March of Dimes, chairman of the recent fact finding board for investigating the possibility of having a YMCA in Circleville. In addition he has been a promoter of the past few Halloween parades.

He is currently a member of the Jaycee board of directors and a member of the Lions Club and the Elks Lodge.

Commenting on his surprise at being chosen, the 1956 winner said: "I haven't been so scared since I had to walk up to receive my army school commendation."

In remarking that he believed Circleville to have more civic enthusiasm "than any town of its size," Webb said he thought that it might better be channeled by more co-operation among the various clubs in the city, "perhaps by joint meetings." He said he would like to see clubs work together to improve park facilities and to build or acquire a community center for the city and county.

Identity of the judging committee was revealed at the time the award was made. The five members of the committee were, Mayor Robert E. Hedges, Paul Johnson, the Rev. Charles Reed, Joe Bell and Dwight Steele, who was chairman.

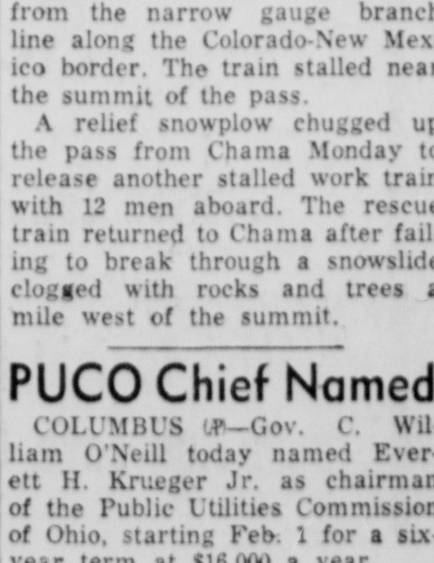

The award to Webb was the 11th annual one made in the 17-year-history of the Jaycees. The last Jaycee member to win was Robert L. Brehmer, Jr. in 1951. Richard Penn won in 1952, the Rev. Fred Ketner in 1954, and Henry L. Reid, Jr. was the winner last year. No award was made in 1953.

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

Back in 1936 my no-good Brother, Duke, was thrown out of the Boy Scouts for not living up to their code. Instead of being physically strong, mentally alert and morally straight, Duke was physically weak, mentally asleep and morally crooked. To "get even," Duke formed a rival organization which he called "The Bad Scouts." The highest rank in the outfit was a Culture Scout and a boy could reach this class by winning a certain number of Demerit Badges in various activities. Like Hub Cap Swiping, Chicken Stealing, Hockey Playing, Cigarette Smoking, Necking, Fist Fighting and Bad Surfiness. The motto of the Bad Scouts was "Be Unprepared" and it was their sworn duty, "every day in every way to do somebody good"—and I mean good.

Stark County Solon Would Delve Into Violence, Damage

COLUMBUS (AP)—Rep. Guy Hinder (R-Stark) today drafted a resolution calling for a legislative investigation of conditions incident to the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. strike.

The resolution calls for a six-member joint legislative committee, empowered to delve into conditions surrounding the violence and property damage in the strike, started by the Communications Workers of America last July 15.

Violence in the strike against the company, which operates in many communities in Ohio, has centered in Portsmouth, where the company's exchanges were closed for a long period. Supervisory personnel operate the exchanges in Scioto County.

Negotiations to end the strike have been underway for many weeks without significant progress. The union wants to retain a union shop clause in any new contract, the same as in the old contract. But General Telephone Co., which now controls Ohio Consolidated, is opposed to the union shop clause.

HINDER'S PROPOSED committee would be empowered to make recommendations aimed at preventing a recurrence of violence. It would be required to make its report by April 1.

Earlier today, E. L. Phillips, federal negotiator, reported that union and management remained deadlocked in conferences called to seek a settlement in the lengthy telephone strike. Monday's negotiations lasted nine hours.

Meanwhile, Portsmouth police officials blamed demands on its cruisers and officers, due to the strike, for the worst crime wave in the city's history.

Police officials said patrolmen in cruisers were used to contact personnel, patients' relatives and doctors for the city's three hospitals, because of the lack of phone service, due to wholesale cable slashings.

This use of cruisers and patrolmen for messenger service leaves the business and residential districts wide open to all types of robbery, they said.

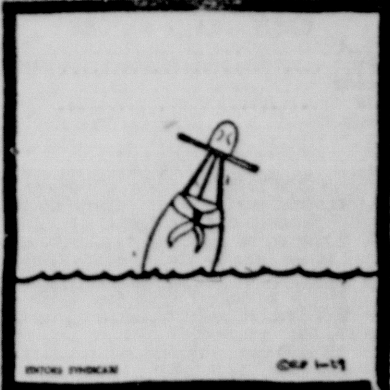

In the last 48 hours police records show four safes cracked in central district business establishments, netting $900 in cash; eight

"BUOY SCOUT"

Back in 1936 my no-good Brother, Duke, was thrown out of the Boy Scouts for not living up to their code. Instead of being physically strong, mentally alert and morally straight, Duke was physically weak, mentally asleep and morally crooked. To "get even," Duke formed a rival organization which he called "The Bad Scouts." The highest rank in the outfit was a "Vulture Scout" and a boy could reach this class by winning a certain number of Demented Badges in various activities. Like Hub Cap Swiping, Chicken Stealing, Hockey Playing, Cigarette Smoking, Necking, Fist Fighting and Surliness. The motto of the Bad Scouts was "Be Unprepared" and it was their sworn duty, "every day in every way to do somebody good"—and I mean good.

Tavern Burglary Details Revealed

Police Say Herron And Hughes Know They 'Pulled Dumb Ones'

Circleville police last night said that two men, caught in Virginia with money stolen from Son's Grill here, "realize now that they pulled some mighty dumb ones."

When arrested near Gate City, Va., after stirring up a disturbance "over a sandwich or something", the men still had $800 in checks—along with currency—taken from the tavern. And they also had a money bag with the name of the tavern printed on the side. Altogether, about $3,800 was taken.

The pair, George Herron, 32, and Daniel Hughes, 30, pleaded guilty in Circleville city court yesterday and were automatically bound over to the Pickaway County Grand Jury on accusations of breaking and entering and grand larceny. Municipal court does not handle felony cases.

Circleville Police Chief Elmer Merriman, commenting on several surprising details of the case, said: "They know they pulled some dumb ones. They've admitted it, both of them."

ACCORDING to a series of question-and-answer sessions with the pair, Merriman recalled their story in this fashion:

Although Herron and Hughes gave Clarkburg as their home in early questioning, both roomed in the Circleville downtown area for a considerable length of time—Herron at a S. Court St. address and Hughes on E. Main St.

They became acquainted and planned the Son's Grill break-in.

Hughes for a time last year was employed at the tavern and came to know the combination of the safe. Merriman said he was told it had not been changed up to the night of the burglary, thus accounting for the fact that the safe did not have to be forced open.

Entrance to the tavern, however, apparently was not accomplished in the manner first believed—with a key secretly made for one of the three doors. Instead, police said, Hughes pried apart bars on a rear window and discovered that the window itself was unlocked and easily opened.

Police estimate the break-in was made about 3 a. m. Hughes, they said, entered alone while Herron waited outside.

HUGHES CAME out of the establishment through a S. Court St. doorway between the tavern's main door and an adjoining barber shop.

(Suspensions turned to Hughes early in the investigation because Bob Tootle, manager of the tavern, noticed Hughes and Herron walking past the grill shortly after it had been closed the night of the break-in.)

For a few days following the break-in, the men remained in this section of the state. With a portion of the money, they bought an automobile in which, according to police, they originally planned to go to California.

Their trail, however, led instead into Virginia where they attracted the attention of law enforcement men during a rumper near Gate City. Merriman said he was told the disturbance began in a restaurant, where the men started an uproar "over a sandwich or something."

A deputy sheriff later arrested Hughes on accusation of being drunk in public, and Herron for alleged drunk driving. The charges presumably were dropped when the men were returned here.

The checks and money bag in their possession led the Virginia authorities to call Circleville police.

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer said the men will be held for the May term grand jury. They are being held under $2,500 bond each.

Bugle Corps Reorganized As Marching Unit

Circleville's American Legion drum and bugle corps has been officially reorganized as a marching unit, Legion officials announced today.

Legion spokesmen said the new unit will not participate in competition, at least not in the near future. The group's main activity will be in parades, musical shows and the like.

The popular unit was first organized here in 1949. However, the corps disbanded several months ago due to difficulty in finding and keeping members.

Efforts to reorganize got off to a good start last week when 20 persons attended a meeting held at Memorial Hall. An additional 12 men have expressed a desire to join the unit if activity is limited to parades.

AS YET no definite parade schedule has been set for the coming season, but the corps will probably take part in all local parade and musical activities.

Tom Larimer will serve as music director. A new slate of officers will be elected within the next two weeks.

On February 9, the newly organized corps plans to conduct its annual Block of Dimes Campaign to help the local March of Dimes fund drive.

Office Seekers Reminded On Filing Deadline

Nominating petitions have been filed by Robert H. Huffer, democratic nominee for the office of city solicitor, James I. Smith III and Merle M. Huffer as democratic nominees for councilman from the city's third ward.

Persons desiring to take out and file petitions may do so at the county board of elections located in the basement of the courthouse.

Tavern Burglary Details Revealed

Police Say Herron And Hughes Know They 'Pulled Dumb Ones'

Circleville police last night said that two men, caught in Virginia with money stolen from Son's Grill here, "realize now that they pulled some mighty dumb ones."

When arrested near Gate City, Va., after stirring up a disturbance "over a sandwich or something," the men still had $800 in checks—along with currency—taken from the tavern. And they also had a money bag with the name of the tavern printed on the side. Altogether, about $3,800 was taken.

The pair, George Herron, 32, and Daniel Hughes, 30, pleaded guilty in Circleville city court yesterday and were automatically bound over to the Pickaway County Grand Jury on accusations of breaking and entering and grand larceny. Municipal court does not handle felony cases.

Circleville Police Chief Elmer Merriman, commenting on several surprising details of the case, said: "They know they pulled some dumb ones. They've admitted it, both of them."

ACCORDING to a series of question-and-answer sessions with the pair, Merriman recalled their story in this fashion:

Although Herron and Hughes gave Clarkburg their home in early questioning, both roomed in the Circleville downtown area for a considerable length of time—Herron at a S. Court St. address and Hughes on E. Main St.

They became acquainted and planned the Son's Grill break-in.

Hughes for a time last year was employed at the tavern and came to know the combination of the safe. Merriman said he was told it had not been changed up to the night of the burglary, thus accounting for the fact that the safe did not have to be forced open.

Entrance to the tavern, however, apparently was not accomplished

Flory said no charge had been filed yet against Gattuso, although Mahoning County Coroner David Belinky had ruled homicide.

Bugle Corps Reorganized As Marching Unit

Circleville's American Legion drum and bugle corps has been officially reorganized as a marching unit, Legion officials announced today.

Legion spokesmen said the new unit will not participate in competition, at least not in the near future. The group's main activity will be in parades, musical shows and the like.

The popular unit was first organized here in 1949. However, the corps disbanded several months ago due to difficulty in finding and keeping members.

Efforts to reorganize got off to a good start last week when 20 persons attended a meeting held at Memorial Hall. An additional 12 men have expressed a desire to join the unit if activity is limited to parades.

AS YET no definite parade schedule has been set for the coming season, but the corps will probably take part in all local parade and musical activity.

Tom Larimer will serve as music director. A new slate of officers will be elected within the next two weeks.

On February 9, the newly organized corps plans to conduct its annual Block of Dimes Campaign to help the local March of Dimes fund drive.

Herter Tagged For Top Policy Job With Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts was in line today to become the Eisenhower administration's chief policy coordinator. Vice President Nixon had been considered for the job.

Herter, scheduled to succeed Herbert Hoover Jr. as undersecretary of state this week, is expected to replace Hoover also as chairman of the Operations Coordinating Board.

In this role, he would see that government departments followed presidential policies and directives weren't sabotaged down the line.

President Eisenhower reported to have decided against moving Nixon into the OCB chairman's job because too much detailed work is involved. He reportedly plans to use Nixon instead on special, specific policy missions at home and abroad.

Big U.S. Banks Putting On More 'Weight'

21 Financial Giants Report Their Assets As Over $1 Billion

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's big banks are putting on more weight. This is a sidelight of the banking scene as governmental reviews of financial and banking policies are talked up.

There are now 21 with assets of one billion dollars or more each—one more than a year ago. Together the assets of the 21 total 62 3/4 billion dollars, a gain in the year of 1 1/2 billion.

Nineteen of these banks also have deposits in excess of one billion dollars. But many report total deposits lower than a year ago and some have raised the interest rates they pay in an attempt to lure savers back.

Their loans and profits have grown much more than their assets. This is true of most banks.

Commercial and industrial loans of member banks reporting to the federal reserve system—include banks of all sizes—rose by 18 per cent during 1956 to a record 30 3/4 billion dollars.

Since interest rates on loans rose during the year, too, the earnings of the banks swelled by 10 to 20 per cent. When deposits weren't high enough to supply the money needed to meet the demands of business for loans, banks sold some of their government securities to raise cash. This helped depress the price of these bonds during the latter part of the year.

The top 21 are scattered across the country. Eight are in New York, three in San Francisco, two each in Chicago, Philadelphia and Detroit, and one each in Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles.

Eight of the 21 reported a very slight dip in total assets in the year, but the other 13 gained enough to more than offset this.

The West Coast's giant Bank of America with its wide flung branch system leads as it has for several years. Its assets climbed 322 million dollars in the year to total just under 10 billion.

Five New York banks follow, each with assets of three billion dollars or more.

In the two billion asset class are First National of Chicago, Continental Illinois of Chicago, National of Detroit.

This year's newcomer to the list of one billion dollars or more is Detroit Bank and Trust.

Prospects for continued profit gains are bright, with credit demand high and interest rates firm. Chances of increasing total deposits aren't that bright, with strong competition from other types of investment for the savers' dollars.

Negro Bomb Victim Getting City Aid

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Police Commissioner Clyde Sellers, a director of the pro-segregation Montgomery Citizens' Council, is collecting money to help the Negro victim of a bombing.

Sellers said Monday night he was accepting contributions to be used to replace furniture of Allen Robertson, whose rented home was damaged Sunday by a bomb in Montgomery's continuing racial tension.

Robertson, his wife and daughter, asleep in the house, were not injured.

Sellers said he had been attended by Robertson, a 59-year-old hospital orderly, while hospitalized. He called the Negro an "innocent bystander" in the bombing, which police are still investigating together with six other bombings in the past three weeks.

Ohio Church Council Calling For End To Horse Racing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Council of Churches Monday night called for an end to horse racing in Ohio.

Gambling in general, but horse racing in particular, came under the council's fire during a business meeting of the Ohio Pastor's Convention. The four-day convention is being held in the Franklin County Veterans Memorial here.

A resolution adopted at the business session declared:

"The assembly of the Ohio Council of Churches opposes gambling and particularly censures the gambling conducted under the Horse Racing Act by which the State of Ohio purports to license and supervise gambling, and, in fact, shares the profits of such gambling by way of a tax thereon."

The Assembly instructed its executive committee to work for repeal of the Horse Racing Act, or to look for means to test its constitutionality.

In another resolution, the Assembly praised the people of Ohio for providing food, clothing and homes for Hungarian refugees.

A third resolution protested what the Assembly termed "violence and discrimination" against the Koinonia Community, and interracial Christian community near Americus, Ga.

Earlier in Monday's program, some 1,500 ministers heard addresses by a number of leading religious, academic and civic leaders.

J. Earnest Wilkins, assistant U. S. Secretary of Labor discussed "the Christian approach to international labor relations."

"The first thing that we should do," he told the convention, "is to see that people who go aboard to the greatest extent possible behave like decent Christian citizens. . . ."

University Prof Runs TV Winnings Up To $122,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Van Doren, a $4,400-a-year English instructor at Columbia University, Monday night boosted his winnings to $122,000 on NBC's television program "Twenty-One."

He entered Monday night's competition against two opponents as the biggest money-winner on TV quiz programs by virtue of finishing last week's contest with $104,500. Five persons had shared the old record with winnings of $100,000 on the "Big Surprise."

Van Doren, a 30-year-old bachelor, has until Feb. 11 to decide whether he'll try to increase his winnings. There is no limit. A special show will replace "Twenty-One" next week, giving Van Doren an extra week to think it over.

What's the price of 20 extra years?

Life expectancy has been increased by 20 years since 1905 thanks largely to the miracle of modern drugs. Pretty reasonable, when you consider that often there's nothing more required than the price of a prescription. That's why we keep saying prescriptions today are really less expensive. It's true that 50 years ago you could buy a bottle of medicine for half a dollar . . . but how effective was it? Usually it did nothing but ease symptoms, if that. Today, your prescription may cost a little more in dollars and cents, but you get much more—twenty extra years, for instance!

Big U.S. Banks Putting On More 'Weight'

21 Financial Giants Report Their Assets As Over $1 Billion

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's big banks are putting on more weight. This is a sidelight of the banking scene as governmental reviews of financial and banking policies are talked up.

There are now 21 with assets of one billion dollars or more each—one more than a year ago. Together the assets of the 21 total 62 1/2 billion dollars, a gain in the year of 1 1/2 billion.

Nineteen of these banks also have deposits in excess of one billion dollars. But many report total deposits lower than a year ago and some have raised the interest rates they pay in an attempt to lure savers back.

Their loans and profits have grown much more than their assets. This is true of most banks. Commercial and industrial loans of member banks reporting to the federal reserve system—include banks of all sizes—rose by 18 per cent during 1956 to a record 30 1/2 billion dollars.

Since interest rates on loans rose during the year, too, the earnings of the banks swelled by 10 to 20 per cent. When deposits weren't high enough to supply the money needed to meet the demands of business for loans, banks sold some of their government securities to raise cash. This helped depress the price of these bonds during the latter part of the year.

The top 21 are scattered across the country. Eight are in New York, three in San Francisco, two each in Chicago, Philadelphia and Detroit, and one each in Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles.

Eight of the 21 reported a very slight dip in total assets in the year, but the other 13 gained enough to more than offset this.

The West Coast's giant Bank of America with its wide flung branch system leads as it has for several years. Its assets climbed 322 million dollars in the year to total just under 10 billion.

Five New York banks follow, each with assets of three billion dollars or more.

In the two billion asset class are First National of Chicago, Continental Illinois of Chicago, National of Detroit.

This year's newcomer to the list of one billion dollars or more is Detroit Bank and Trust.

Prospects for continued profit gains are bright, with credit demand high and interest rates firm. Chances of increasing total deposits aren't that bright, with strong competition from other types of investment for the savers' dollars.

Negro Bomb Victim Getting City Aid

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Police Commissioner Clyde Sellers, a director of the pro-segregation Montgomery Citizens' Council, is collecting money to help the Negro victim of a bombing.

Sellers said Monday night he was accepting contributions to be used to replace furniture of Allen Robertson, whose rented home was damaged Sunday by a bomb in Montgomery's continuing racial tension.

Robertson, his wife and daughter, asleep in the house, were not injured.

Sellers said he had been attended by Robertson, a 59-year-old hospital orderly, while hospitalized. He called the Negro an "innocent bystander" in the bombing, which police are still investigating together with six other bombings in the past three weeks.

Ohio Church Council Calling For End To Horse Racing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Council of Churches Monday night called for an end to horse racing in Ohio.

Gambling in general, but horse racing in particular, came under the council's fire during a business meeting of the Ohio Pastor's Convention. The four-day convention is being held in the Franklin County Veterans Memorial here.

A resolution adopted at the business session declared:

"The assembly of the Ohio Council of Churches opposes gambling and particularly censures the gambling conducted under the Horse Racing Act by which the State of Ohio purports to license and supervise gambling, and, in reality, shares the profits of such gambling by way of a tax thereon."

The Assembly instructed its executive committee to work for repeal of the Horse Racing Act, or to look for means to test its constitutionality.

In another resolution, the Assembly praised the people of Ohio for providing food, clothing and homes for Hungarian refugees.

A third resolution protested what the Assembly termed "violence and discrimination" against the Koinonia Community, and interracial Christian community near Americus, Ga.

Earlier in Monday's program, some 1,500 ministers heard addresses by a number of leading religious, academic and civic leaders.

J. Earnest Wilkins, assistant U. S. Secretary of Labor discussed "the Christian approach to international labor relations."

THE TEAMSTERS' union begins to look like a victim of that pride which in unions as well as individuals so often goes before a fall.

There have been instances of this in labor history, notably that of the miners' union in the period when an impression was growing on it of being bigger than the U. S. government. For the miners this ended abruptly when they and John L. Lewis made the acquaintance of Judge Goldsborough and his fines, in the millions of dollars, for contempt.

The defiance of the Senate Investigation subcommittee by teamster officials is not in all respects analogous. There is a basic similarity, however, in the fact that these officials have fed on the same meat that nourished the costly arrogance of Mr. Lewis.

The teamsters is the largest labor union partly because drivers occupy a strategic spot in the economy. Even more, however, this union has flourished because, in more senses than one, it has delivered the goods. Like the miners' union, it has striven mightily for its members who, accordingly, have developed both an enviable esprit de corps and a readiness to yield unquestioning subservience to their leaders.

This loyalty is heady stuff for the leaders, some of whom now stand accused by the Senate subcommittee in betraying the trust reposed in them. However, the decision to challenge the subcommittee was not that of a few miscreants squirming at the prospect of retribution. It was policy, dictated from headquarters. The contempt risked is a massive one and, as in the miners' case, could bring formidable penalties.

The Senate is not likely to brook such a defiance of its authority. The questions asked were of a kind honest men would prefer to answer without resort to legal quibble. A trail so strongly scented is not apt to be dropped by Congress until it gets the answers.

MAN AS AN ANIMAL

WHENEVER certain scientists run out of subjects to discuss, they always return to man as an animal. It is a favorite thesis. Unanimously they deplore the fact that man in some period of his evolution decided to walk erect, instead of continuing to walk on all fours.

They conclude that what they did to him was plenty. They see him as inferior to all of the four-legged variety. He has lost his sense of smell, and because he eats his food cooked instead of raw, his teeth are no longer efficient.

Listen to this: Because man walks upright, his vital organs are piled one atop another, like the floors of a building, and do not have sufficient room to function properly. His lungs are not properly ventilated, and he gets tuberculosis. Man would think it strange if automobiles moved on rear wheels only. Well, that's exactly what he has been doing since he got up on his own hind legs.

What man has lost in natural beauty and grace, he is forced to make up in dress. Women use cosmetics for the same reason. But wouldn't the gals look funny walking on all four wearing high heeled shoes?

Cold Germs Prefer Women

NEW YORK — Oddities found by a columnist during desk cleaning:

That women get twice as many colds as men, but how does this jibe with the fact that well-to-do people generally catch only half as many colds as the poor?

That, if, during a cocktail party, you kiss a pretty blonde who has a cold, the odds are 9 to 1 you won't catch her cold. What you'll catch from your wife, if she sees you, is another matter.

That farmers suffer more colds than suburbanites, cautious old people suffer fewer than the young folks.

That January is national Take-Care-of-Your-Cold month.

That Dr. J. Schultz, head of a cosmetics firm, predicts that by the year 2,000 women will wear makeup that will last indefinitely and that one of the popular lipstick colors will be light blue!

That Mrs. Donna Workman, a Chicago business executive, says self-supporting working girls make the best wives. I've always said a wife enjoys life more working on a good-paying job than wasting her time hanging around pool halls.

That Santa Claus ranks not first but seventh in popularity as an adornment on the two billion Christmas cards Americans exchange annually. Now that the bills have rolled in, Santa probably is a candidate for the FBI's 10-most-wanted list.

That the camel is the most popular animal on Christmas cards followed by reindeer, the donkey and the lamb. Incidentally, did you send your pet dog or cat a greeting card on its birthday? The custom is growing.

That there is a growing shortage of skilled mechanics as well as engineers. In 1950 there were Obviously the Secretary of the Treasury is not quarrelling with the President. Quite apart from the personal relations between George Humphrey and Dwight D. Eisenhower, which are close and cordial, a member of the President's Cabinet does not have a public row with the President and remain in the Cabinet. That is not customary even among friends.

Therefore this is something else, namely, that the technical economists on the White House staff are followers of John Maynard Keynes and believe in deficit financing which is a mirage that gives the impression of prosperity without its substance, and George Humphrey, unusually successful business, does not believe in deficit financing. His tart phrase on the subject is: "I don't think you can spend yourself rich."

President Eisenhower, instead of keeping this quarrel over a fundamental principle of economics and life, inside the White House, has thrown it into the open for public discussion. In fact, he has thrown it into the lap of Congress and has told Congress to cut his huge, out-of-line budget, if it can.

Congress wonders why the cutting was not done before the Budget was sent to it. The difficulty that Congress faces is that since Roosevelt it has become accustomed to the President almost dictating the Budget whereas the function of appropriations is constitutionally reserved to the Congress and should originate in the House of Representatives.

What portends is that the White House, the Treasury and the Congress seem to give the impression that they are preparing for a recession; that President Eisenhower does not believe it will occur in this fiscal year and that he is ready for it; that Secretary of the Treasury, George Humphrey, believes that unless correct policies are pursued such a recession could dump itself into a depression that "will curl your hair," and that Congress is scared that it might come before the 1958 election and that the voters will follow their time-honored custom of kicking the rascals out.

The old school-boy adage is that whatever goes up must come down and even in the physics of Einstein and the atomic age, this rule holds. So obviously, when government expenditures are too high and the national debt is too high and taxes are too high and prices are too high, something must come down or there will be an explosion.

So far as John Q. Public, to use an ancient and time-worn phrase, is concerned, taxes and prices can come down right now and he would like to put something away each week despite all the fringe securities that have been guaranteed to him. And he is not as afraid of inflation as the politician is because he has lived with inflation for several years and it does not frighten him; it only makes him pay more dollars for less groceries in the super-market.

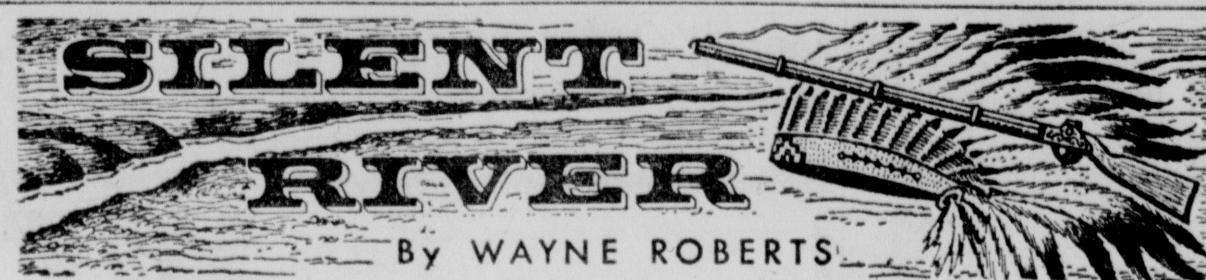

If he can get more groceries for less money, he will be pleased. Also he is getting very tired of taking care of the Indians and the Ceylonese and the Saudi Arabians and he is also tired of the Cold War with Soviet Russia and he wishes that we would hand world leadership over to the British or whoever wants it and can afford to pay for it.

CHAPTER 16

MARCHING up the slope with his detail, the four civilians following, Chad's neck became turkey-red as resentment grew in him.

As they entered Randall's office the Colonel said, "It's not Jefferson Barracks, gentlemen, but make yourselves at home."

"No apologies needed, Colonel," Arbutnot said quickly. "You have made remarkable progress."

"That's very kind of you," Randall said. "We have worked hard, but I'm afraid we look more like carpenters than soldiers."

"We understand, Colonel," Arbutnot said. "And now what can I do for you?" Randall asked.

Arbutnot showed his surprise. "Oh, I'm afraid we have neglected to identify ourselves. We are the Upper Missouri Peace Commission, working under the Department of the Interior."

Chad swore under his breath. At one time, the army had exercised control over all Indian problems, but this control had reluctantly been turned over to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs in the Department of the Interior.

"Peace Commission!" Randall said. "It is an old saying in your department, sir, that you make friends out of enemies and we make enemies out of friends."

"Just a minute, Colonel," Arbutnot broke in. "You don't understand. Members of the department are being sent out to treat with most of the plains Indians this summer. We will save millions of dollars and many lives if we come to an understanding with the tribes."

Chad said, "Perhaps we are being recalled to St. Louis. They won't need us up here any more."

"On the contrary," Arbutnot said, "we expect to see more posts established on the Missouri in the future. We need an escort, Colonel. We have arranged for a meeting with the Sioux between here and Fort Blaine. Runners have gone out to notify the tribes."

"Well, gentlemen," Randall said brusquely, "I'm sorry to disappoint you, but I'm building a fort. I cannot afford to lose the work that the escort you request could do if the men stayed on the job."

"We will not need many of your men, Colonel," Arbutnot said, obviously holding a tight rein on his temper, "and we won't keep them long."

"It's out of the question," Randall replied.

"I'm sorry, Colonel, but I cannot take no for an answer," Arbutnot drew a long envelope from his coat pocket and handed it to Randall. "We have been promised the complete co-operation of the War Department."

Chad had never seen Randall so thoroughly angry. He took the proffered envelope and opened it.

"This is against my will and better judgment," Randall said, "but orders are orders." He nodded at Chad. "Lieutenant, take a detail of a dozen men. Take Sergeant Mullivane, Cuddery, too."

Arbutnot extended his hand to Randall. He said, "Thank you, Colonel."

Randall shook the outstretched hand, but his eyes were bitter. Chad could not help wondering why he had been so furious, and then a possible answer occurred to him. Randall knew he would not be reinforced before spring. The loss of a dozen men could prove fatal.

Before Chad left the fort, Colonel Randall gave him one final order. "Under no circumstances are you to precipitate action of any kind." Now, standing at the rail of the Last Chance, Chad stared at the clay bank that was moving past, and cursed the army and its ways. A sudden impulse made him swing away from the rail and walk down the deck until he found Mullivane.

When Chad came up to him, he said in a low tone, "Scared, Lieutenant?"

"About as scared as you are," Chad said, "but the Colonel's last order was not to precipitate any action. See that you don't."

A wicked grin curled across Mullivane's red, fleshy face. "Colonel's orders, Lieutenant, or yours?"

"Right now it's my order," Chad said. "You'll obey it, or I'll bust you."

"Will you, now?" Mullivane murmured.

Chad walked away. The Last Chance had finished its short trip and was nosing into the muddy south bank of the Missouri. The Sioux were camped near the river on a flat meadow fringed by cottonwood trees. A sizable band, Chad saw, several hundred at least.

Zack joined Chad at the rail. "First Injun camp you ever see, ain't it?" he asked, and when Chad nodded, the scout went on, "take a good look, Lieutenant. Yonder beside each lodge you'll see a rig made of willow boughs. Kind of an outdoor kitchen. There's a travois, too. You oughta see 'em on the move. The way they stack their stuff is a caution."

"We're ready, Lieutenant," Arbutnot's voice cut in crisply. "I would like to have you and your men remain in the background just close enough to cover us. Of course I don't anticipate any trouble."

Chad nodded and called to his men. As the soldiers moved ashore, they were joined by part of the boat's crew, who carried gifts for the Indians. A number of traders also went ashore to bargain with the Sioux.

Several Indians stood waiting between the river and village. Chad turned to Zack. "See anybody you know, Zack?"

"It's a Hunkpapa band," Zack said, "but Sittin' Bull ain't here. That's Cut Lip in front."

Zack indicated a heavy-set Indian wearing a fringed buckskin shirt embroidered with porcupine quills, leggings, moccasins, and a red breechcloth. "Ornery devil, Cut Lip is, but that other one beside him is a good Injun. He's Big-Belly-on-a-Horse. I spent a winter with his bunch up the Marias once."

The procession moved toward the Indians in a slow and dignified manner. Arbutnot and the man he had introduced as Wilkins leading it. Now, obeying Arbutnot's orders, Chad and his detail fell behind. Presently they stopped as the commissioners reached the waiting Indians and started going through the ceremony of greeting them. Wilkins was the interpreter.

At the moment there seemed to be no sign of trouble. But Chad, glancing at Zack, who was watching the scene intently, sensed the tension in the scout, and he knew at once that he had ample grounds for worry.

How will the Indians receive the commissioners? Find out in Chapter 17, here tomorrow.

DIET AND HEALTH

Diabetics Can Lead Fairly Normal Lives

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THIRSTY all the time, even in this cold weather? I mean are you really thirsty? Do you gulp lots of water, milk and soft drinks?

If you do, let me urge you to see your doctor. While there may be nothing seriously wrong, you may be a victim of diabetes without even being aware of it.

Needn't Be Fatal

Diabetes no longer need be a fatal disease—if you get medical help early enough. With insulin and prescribed diets, the majority of diabetics can, and do, live to a ripe old age.

A diabetic does not necessarily have to lead the life of an invalid. With proper treatment, he can probably live a normal or near-normal life.

Other Symptoms

Unquenchable thirst is not always a symptom of diabetes, nor is it the only symptom. Be especially alert if your thirst is accompanied by a loss of weight, despite an increased appetite, weakness, pains in the legs, a dry skin and a general feeling of nervousness and irritability.

Frequent urination sometimes is a symptom, particularly if the urine causes frequent boils.

If you have frequent boils or ulcers on your feet, be sure to have your doctor check you for diabetes whether or not any of the other symptoms are present. Sometimes the only complaint a patient will have as the condition progresses is loss of pep and uncontrolled drowsiness.

Children and Adults

Who gets diabetes? Both children and adults can be victims.

But most diabetics are persons of middle age who have been hearty eaters for years and, generally, they are overweight. Since diabetes tends to run in families, any of you whose parents suffered from the disease may be more vulnerable.

A word of caution—let me urge you not to overeat. Be especially careful to avoid eating too much starchy and sweet foods. Get a lot of fruit and green and yellow vegetables. Also, have a physical checkup at least once a year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. G.: I have dark spots in the corner of my eyes. What causes this? I wear glasses.

Answer: The dark spots in the corner of your eye might be due to a variety of causes. They might come from irritation from the glasses, from some skin infection or possibly from some circulatory disturbance.

An examination is needed to determine the cause.

THE TEAMSTERS' union begins to look like a victim of that pride which in unions as well as individuals so often goes before a fall.

There have been instances of this in labor history, notably that of the miners' union in the period when an impression was growing on it of being bigger than the U. S. government. For the miners this ended abruptly when they and John L. Lewis made the acquaintance of Judge Goldsborough and his fines, in the millions of dollars, for contempt.

The defiance of the Senate Investigation subcommittee by teamster officials is not in all respects analogous. There is a basic similarity, however, in the fact that these officials have fed on the same meat that nourished the costly arrogance of Mr. Lewis.

The teamsters is the largest labor union partly because drivers occupy a strategic spot in the economy. Even more, however, this union has flourished because, in more senses than one, it has delivered the goods. Like the miners' union, it has striven mightily for its members who, accordingly, have developed both an enviable esprit de corps and a readiness to yield unquestioning subservience to their leaders.

This loyalty is heady stuff for the leaders, some of whom now stand accused by the Senate subcommittee in betraying the trust reposed in them. However, the decision to challenge the subcommittee was not that of a few miscreants squirming at the prospect of retribution. It was policy, dictated from headquarters. The contempt risked is a massive one and, as in the miners' case, could bring formidable penalties.

The Senate is not likely to brook such a defiance of its authority. The questions asked were of a kind honest men would prefer to answer without resort to legal quibble. A trail so strongly scented is not apt to be dropped by Congress until it gets the answers.

MAN AS AN ANIMAL

WHENEVER certain scientists run out of subjects to discuss, they always return to man as an animal. It is a favorite thesis. Unanimously they deplore the fact that man in some period of his evolution decided to walk erect, instead of continuing to walk on all fours.

They conclude that what they did to him was plenty. They see him as inferior to all of the four-legged variety. He has lost his sense of smell, and because he eats his food cooked instead of raw, his teeth are no longer efficient.

Listen to this: Because man walks upright, his vital organs are piled one atop another, like the floors of a building, and do not have sufficient room to function properly. His lungs are not properly ventilated, and he gets tuberculosis. Man would think it strange if automobiles moved on rear wheels only. Well, that's exactly what he has been doing since he got up on his own hind legs.

What man has lost in natural beauty and grace, he is forced to make up in dress. Women use cosmetics for the same reason. But wouldn't the gals look funny walking on all four wearing high heeled shoes?

Cold Germs Prefer Women

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK — Oddities found by a columnist during desk cleaning:
That women get twice as many colds as men, but how does this jibe with the fact that well-to-do people generally catch only half as many colds as the poor?

That if, during a cocktail party, you kiss a pretty blonde who has a cold, the odds are 9 to 1 you won't catch her cold. What you'll catch from your wife, if she sees you, is another matter.

That farmers suffer more colds than suburbanites, cautious old people suffer fewer than the young folks.
That January is national Take-Care-of-Your-Cold month.

That Dr. J. Schultz, head of a cosmetics firm, predicts that by the year 2,000 women will wear makeup that will last indefinitely and that one of the popular lipstick colors will be light blue!

That Mrs. Donna Workman, a Chicago business executive, says self-supporting working girls make the best wives. I've always said a wife enjoys life more working on a good-paying job than wasting her time hanging around pool halls.
That Santa Claus ranks not first but seventh in popularity as an adornment on the two billion Christmas cards Americans exchange annually. Now that the bills have rolled in, Santa probably is a candidate for the FBI's 10-most-wanted list.
That the camel is the most popular animal on Christmas cards followed by reindeer, the donkey and the lamb. Incidentally, did you send your pet dog or cat a greeting card on its birthday? The custom is growing.

That there is a growing shortage of skilled mechanics as well as engineers. In 1950 there were 73 cars to each mechanic, now the ratio is 81-to-1, by 1965 is expected to reach 90-to-1.

That Frederick Jones, the hair stylist who thought up the idea of tinting Kim Novak's locks a pale lavender, has now created an "Elvis Presley bob" for teenage girl fans of the singer. Now they not only can listen to their idol—they can also look like him!
That interior designer Lee Kelly says there is a trend away from desks and conference tables in executive business offices. In their place in the desks of the future he predicts: A soft chaise longue, conducive to "dynamic creative thought."

That contract bridge is now taught in at least 20 U. S. colleges and universities. With some 32 million players, it is ranked second only to canasta among card games. Everyone I know plays gin rummy? Am I moving in the wrong circles?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Obviously the Secretary of the Treasury is not quarrelling with the President. Quite apart from the personal relations between George Humphrey and Dwight D. Eisenhower, which are close and cordial, a member of the President's Cabinet does not have a public row with the President and remain in the Cabinet. That is not customary even among friends.

Therefore this is something else, namely, that the technical economists on the White House staff are followers of John Maynard Keynes and believe in deficit financing which is a mirage that gives the impression of prosperity without its substance, and George Humphrey, unusually successful business, does not believe in deficit financing. His tart phrase on the subject is: "I don't think you can spend yourself rich."

President Eisenhower, instead of keeping this quarrel over a fundamental principle of economics and life, inside the White House, has thrown it into the open for public discussion. In fact, he has thrown it into the lap of Congress and has told Congress to cut his huge, out-of-line budget, if it can.

Congress wonders why the cutting was not done before the Budget was sent to it. The difficulty that Congress faces is that since Roosevelt it has become accustomed to the President almost dictating the Budget whereas the function of appropriations is constitutionally reserved to the Congress and should originate in the House of Representatives.

What portends is that the White House, the Treasury and the Congress seem to give the impression that they are preparing for a recession; that President Eisenhower does not believe it will occur in this fiscal year and that he is ready for it; that Secretary of the Treasury, George Humphrey, believes that unless correct policies are pursued such a recession could dump itself into a depression that "will curl your hair," and that Congress is scared that it might come before the 1958 election and that the voters will follow their time-honored custom of kicking the rascals out.

The old school-boy adage is that whatever goes up must come down and even in the physics of Einstein and the atomic age, this rule holds. So obviously, when government expenditures are too high and the national debt is too high and taxes are too high and prices are too high, something must come down or there will be an explosion.

So far as John Q. Public, to use an ancient and time-worn phrase, is concerned, taxes and prices can come down right now and he would like to put something away each week despite all the fringe securities that have been guaranteed to him. And he is not as afraid of inflation as the politician is because he has lived with inflation for several years and it does not frighten him; it only makes him pay more dollars for less groceries in the super-market.
If he can get more groceries for less money, he will be pleased. Also he is getting very tired of taking care of the Indians and the Ceylonese and the Saudi Arabians and he is also tired of the Cold War with Soviet Russia and he wishes that we would hand world leadership over to the British or whoever wants it and can afford to pay for it.

MARCHING up the slope with his detail, the four civilians following, Chad's neck became turkey-red as resentment grew in him.

As they entered Randall's office the Colonel said, "It's not Jefferson Barracks, gentlemen, but make yourselves at home." "No apologies needed, Colonel," Arbutnot said quickly. "You have made remarkable progress." "That's very kind of you," Randall said. "We have worked hard, but I'm afraid we look more like carpenters than soldiers." "We understand, Colonel," Arbutnot said. "And now what can I do for you?" Randall asked.

Arbutnot showed his surprise. "Oh, I'm afraid we have neglected to identify ourselves. We are the Upper Missouri Peace Commission, working under the Department of the Interior." Chad swore under his breath. At one time, the army had exercised control over all Indian problems, but this control had recently been turned over to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs in the Department of the Interior.

"Peace Commission!" Randall said. "It is an old saying in your department, sir, that you make friends out of enemies and we make enemies out of friends." "Just a minute, Colonel," Arbutnot broke in. "You don't understand. Members of the department are being sent out to treat with most of the plains Indians this summer. We will save millions of dollars and many lives if we come to an understanding with the tribes."

Chad said, "Perhaps we are being recalled to St. Louis. They won't need us up here any more." "On the contrary," Arbutnot said, "we expect to see more posts established on the Missouri in the future. We need an escort, Colonel. We have arranged for a meeting with the Sioux between here and Fort Blaine. Runners have gone out to notify the tribes."

"Well, gentlemen," Randall said brusquely, "I'm sorry to disappoint you, but I'm building a fort. I cannot afford to lose the work that the escort you request could do if the men stayed on the job."

"We will not need many of your men, Colonel," Arbutnot said, obviously holding a tight rein on his temper, "and we won't keep them long." "It's out of the question," Randall replied. "I'm sorry, Colonel, but I cannot take no for an answer." Arbutnot drew a long envelope from his coat pocket and handed it to Randall. "We have been promised the complete co-operation of the War Department."

Chad had never seen Randall so thoroughly angry. He took the proffered envelope and opened it. "This is against my will and better judgment," Randall said, "but orders are orders." He nodded at Chad. "Lieutenant, take a detail of a dozen men. Take Sergeant Mullivane, Cuddery, too."

Arbutnot extended his hand to Randall. He said, "Thank you, Colonel." Randall shook the outstretched hand, but his eyes were bitter. Chad could not help wondering why he had been so furious, and then a possible answer occurred to him. Randall knew he would not be reinforced before spring. The loss of a dozen men could prove fatal.

Before Chad left the fort, Colonel Randall gave him one final order. "Under no circumstances are you to precipitate action of any kind." Now, standing at the rail of the Last Chance, Chad stared at the camp bank that was moving past, and cursed the army and its ways. A sudden impulse made him swing away from the rail and walk down the deck until he found Mullivane.

When Chad came up to him, he said in a low tone, "Scared, Lieutenant?" "About as scared as you are," Chad said, "but the Colonel's last order was not to precipitate any action. See that you don't."

A wicked grin curled across Mullivane's red, fleshy face. "Colonel's orders, Lieutenant, or yours?" "Right now it's my order," Chad said. "You'll obey it, or I'll bust you."

"Will you, now?" Mullivane murmured. Chad walked away. The Last Chance had finished its short trip and was nosing into the muddy south bank of the Missouri. The Sioux were camped near the river on a flat meadow fringed by cottonwood trees. A sizable band, Chad saw, several hundred at least.

Zack joined Chad at the rail. "First Injun camp you ever see, ain't it?" he asked, and when Chad nodded, the scout went on, "Take a good look, Lieutenant. Yonder beside each lodge you'll see a rig made of willow boughs. Kind of an outdoor kitchen. There's a travois, too. You oughta see 'em on the move. The way they stack their stuff is a caution."

"We're ready, Lieutenant," Arbutnot's voice cut in crisply. "I would like to have you and your men remain in the background just close enough to cover us. Of course I don't anticipate any trouble."

Chad nodded and called to his men. As the soldiers moved ashore, they were joined by part of the boat's crew, who carried gifts for the Indians. A number of traders also went ashore to bargain with the Sioux.

Several Indians stood waiting between the river and village. Chad turned to Zack. "See anybody you know, Zack?"

"It's a Hunkpapa band," Zack said, "but Sittin' Bull ain't here. That's Cut Lip in front."

Zack indicated a heavy-set Indian wearing a fringed buckskin shirt embroidered with porcupine quills, leggings, moccasins, and a red breechcloth. "Omery devil. Cut Lip is, but that other one beside him is a good Injun. He's Big-Belly-on-a-Horse. I spent a winter with his bunch up the Marias once."

The procession moved toward the Indians in a slow and dignified manner. Arbutnot and the man he had introduced as Wilkins leading it. Now, obeying Arbutnot's orders, Chad and his detail fell behind. Presently they stopped as the commissioners reached the waiting Indians and started going through the ceremony of greeting them. Wilkins was the interpreter.

At the moment there seemed to be no sign of trouble. But Chad, glancing at Zack, who was watching the scene intently, sensed the tension in the scout, and he knew at once that he had ample grounds for worry.

How will the Indians receive the commissioners? Find out in Chapter 17, here tomorrow.

Employees Honored At Event In Recognition Of Service

Company Dinner Attended By 200

Twenty-two employees of John W. Eshelman and Sons, local feed manufacturer, were awarded pins in recognition of from 10 to 25 years of service at the annual company dinner, held in the First Methodist Church.

The dinner, attended by 200, was prepared by ladies of the church and served by members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Invocation was given by the Rev. Mr. Charles D. Reed. Tables were decorated with bouquets of red roses and all ladies were presented a rose. The decorations were in keeping with the firm's trademark of Red Rose feeds.

Following the dinner the employees enjoyed entertainment provided by Mitzi Joyce, accordionist; Roxanne, 10-year-old contortionist; and Bill King, juggler and master of ceremonies.

Mr. King was a juggler with the Spike Jones orchestra and his act included juggling and whirling 13 firebrands at one time. Roxanne was winner of the 1955 Youth on Parade contest at the Ohio State Fair and in 1956 won a contest that included a trip to Hollywood for herself and her mother.

Presentation of the awards was made by Mr. D. J. Carpenter, manager of the Circleville plant, assisted by Mr. Luther Bower, personnel director. Mr. Carpenter expressed appreciation to the employees on their service records and urged that they keep safety a watchword in their work.

The employees were also thanked for their faithful service by Mr. H. R. Eshelman Jr., former manager of the Circleville plant, who transferred to the Lancaster, Pa., plant last fall.

Mr. Elmer Howard, manager of the traffic department, was presented a 25-year service pin. Mr. Oliver Lemon, who retired July 1, received a 25 year pin. Mr. James Binkley, a plant foreman, received a pin for 20 years of service.

Others honored were: Fifteen years — Mr. Rodeny Betts, Mr. Delos Humphries, Mr. Ralph Martin, Mr. John McAbee, Mr. Lloyd Rife, Mr. Earl Steele, Mr. Earl Willis.

Ten years — Mrs. Bess Simison, Mr. Guy Allison, Mr. George Forquer, Mr. Mack Shaw, Mr. William Hoskins, Mr. Zed Smith, Mr. Frank Sowers, Mr. Wilson Reid, Mr. Ralph Wolfe, Mr. Leon Minshall, Mr. Harry Wood, and Mr. Henry Legg.

Employees of the maintenance department of the mill were given recognition and presented gifts in appreciation of their work. The department was praised for their skill in keeping machinery in excellent repair and efficiently handling the installation of a large amount of new equipment during the last year.

Members of the group honored were: Mr. W. A. Thomas, Mr. E. E. Hoffman, Mr. Roloff Wolford, Mr. Leslie Garrett, Mr. George Forquer, Mr. Earl Steele, and Mr. Paul Valentine.

The dinner, attended by 200, was prepared by ladies of the church and served by members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Mr. King was a juggler with the Spike Jones orchestra and his act included juggling and whirling 13 firebrands at one time. Roxanne was winner of the 1955 Youth on Parade contest at the Ohio State Fair and in 1956 won a contest that included a trip to Hollywood for herself and her mother.

Presentation of the awards was made by Mr. D. J. Carpenter, manager of the Circleville plant, assisted by Mr. Luther Bower, personnel director. Mr. Carpenter expressed appreciation to the employees on their service records and urged that they keep safety a watchword in their work.

The employees were also thanked for their faithful service by Mr. H. R. Eshelman Jr., former manager of the Circleville plant, who transferred to the Lancaster, Pa., plant last fall.

Mr. Elmer Howard, manager of the traffic department, was presented a 25-year service pin. Mr. Oliver Lemon, who retired July 1, received a 25 year pin. Mr. James Binkley, a plant foreman, received a pin for 20 years of service.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a college man, 22, in love with a college girl a year behind me. We have been dating regularly since we met a year ago, and find we have the same basic values, interests and family background.

The problem for me is that prior to our meeting, Jane had another suitor, who is now in the Army. They have been corresponding during our whole acquaintance; and, since we've grown exceedingly close, her continuing friendship with him has made me extremely jealous.

We have discussed the subject and Jane claims she can't be sure of anything until he is home to stay; and by then I will be just starting my military service.

Partly because of my jealousy, and partly because her old beau was coming home on leave, I suggested (before the holidays) that we stop dating for two months. I figured this would give her a chance to decide which way Cupid's arrow points; and that it might lead either to a complete break between us, or bind us together in mutual love.

Although this separation seemed to bring us even closer together, Jane admits that she is still confused. She did confess, however, that "things weren't the same" with the other man; although she said "three weeks is hardly sufficient time to know."

I am sure she is sincere, but I can't help feeling she is clinging to a memory, more than a reality. I know she wants to be fair, but her indecision is making me pretty resentful.

D. J. DEAR D. J.: As I see the picture, when Jane met you she was "in love" with the other man—maybe because he kept her in uncertainty. And she more or less hung on to him by letters while also dating you this past year, in a "rebound" state of mind.

Your devotion was an anchor of sorts to her; and maybe she also hoped that her dating alliance with you might spur the other man into positive planning. In any case, you "fell in love" with her partly because you sensed she wasn't really available—her heart was involved elsewhere—hence it was a

Texas City Hit By 3 Bombings

BEAUMONT, Tex. (P) — Three bomb blasts shook separate sections of Beaumont Monday night, but no injuries were reported and police said they could find no reason for the bombings.

One bomb blew up the body of a truck owned by State Rep. Rufus Kilpatrick.

Another explosion damaged the entrance to St. Michael's Orthodox Church. The third blast broke some windows in a home.

Several weeks ago, bombs blasted the yards of two Negro men, but police said they didn't think there was any connection between those blasts and the latest incidents.

challenge to you, to beat the position if possible.

As of now, it seems the old admirer is as elusive as ever, or maybe more so; and that he and Jane are in fact growing farther apart—due, perhaps, to interim romancing in his life, as well as hers, since he's been away. Their latest stock-taking leaves Jane still in suspense, and again indecisive about what to do.

As for your sentiments—I doubt that you'd be pressing so urgently for explicit title to her heart, if you felt you had a clear field. It is my impression that both you and Jane are unduly dependent types she clinging to you, you clinging to her, for emotional security of sorts, and as joint defense against the possibility of having to be self-reliant socially.

Likely it is anxious self-interest, not real love of Jane, that makes you so jealous and managerial in the situation. At your age, with your military service still ahead, you probably don't aim to marry for years. So why don't you relax, and stop trying to run other people's lives, and just be grateful for here-and-now fellowship with your girl.

M. H. Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Saxbe said that courtesy and helpfulness would be the watchwords of his office. He promised to maintain "an open-door" policy toward newsmen in operating his office.

Ohio River Boat Finally Finds City To Have Her In Florida

BRADENTON, Fla. (P) — It looks like the venerable Ohio River packet Gordon C. Greene has at last found a safe berth here in Florida.

A general citizen's meeting last week approved a zoning change to accommodate the craft, and only two minor steps remain before she can be brought here.

Yet it was only last month that a storm of protest arose over plans for present owners to dock Sarasota.

Sarasota residents denounced plans to bring the colorful craft there, and in a Venice suburb, a group took out full-page newspaper advertisements saying they would fight the location.

But Bradenton apparently satisfied everyone. Kimball C. Atwood, whose land adjoins where the packet will be moored, said "We think the boat will be a good neighbor and we welcome her."

As to the protests, Atwood said that neither city "has a place on their golf shore for such a boat. It would overshadow everything."

He said there were no objections at last week's meeting to plans by the owners, a Southern syndicate, to make of her a combination restaurant, theater and museum.

Atwood said the only remaining steps are U.S. Engineers permission for dredging a spot for her close to shore, and obtaining a submerged land lease.

The proud old craft, which carried cargo and passengers on nearly every river in the Ohio Valley, was retired in 1947 and sold in 1952.

Plans to make her a hotel at Portsmouth, Ohio, didn't work out. As a restaurant in Owensboro, Ky., she was no success.

Then the new owners purchased her and started moving under tow down the Ohio to the Mississippi.

Right now, she's berthed at Addis, La., near Baton Rouge, where she is gainfully employed in filming of a motion picture.

When that's finished, it will take

Little story about a big partnership

The Norfolk and Western's "product" is transportation...freight service and passenger service which people need in business and in private life

From the income it receives as payment for its "product" the N&W employs many people, and last year provided jobs for a Norfolk and Western Family of 21,113 and paid them $102½ million

...these millions of N&W payroll dollars pass from employees to "the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker." They promote PROSPERITY wherever they go. Also, to provide dependable rail service the N&W is a big purchaser of MATERIALS, SUPPLIES and SERVICES (last year its "shopping bill" amounted to $40,485,000) and a large part of these purchases are made, year in and out, from business firms located "along the line" ... these dollars, too, help build a bigger PROSPERITY...

During the past 15 years our population has increased tremendously ...millions of new jobs are needed and the best source is industry ...with a strong staff of plant location specialists and extensive, consistent ADVERTISING, the N&W has forcefully joined civic and other business interests to develop new industry and new jobs. Last year in the territory it serves—the Land of Plenty — 64 new plants were located and 94 established industries were expanded at a capital investment of $220 million, creating 10,700 JOBS for "folks along the line" ...and finally the N&W's taxes last year -Federal, State and Local-were over $45 million. These tax dollars are paid from unsubsidized income, lightening the individual's tax load by helping substantially to build and support public schools and highways, and to provide police and fire protection, parks, libraries and many other public benefits.

Because the railroad receives its income from business and people and, in turn, serves business and people in these and other ways, a very real partnership exists between the N&W and "folks along the line." As we move forward together in this New Year, the Norfolk and Western will continue to serve in the best ways possible.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a college man, 22, in love with a college girl a year behind me. We have been dating regularly since we met a year ago, and find we have the same basic values, interests and family background.

The problem for me is that prior to our meeting, Jane had another suitor, who is now in the Army. They have been corresponding during our whole acquaintance; and, since we've grown exceedingly close, her continuing friendship with him has made me extremely jealous.

We have discussed the subject and Jane claims she can't be sure of anything until he is home to stay; and by then I will be just starting my military service.

Partly because of my jealousy, and partly because her old beau was coming home on leave, I suggested (before the holidays) that we stop dating for two months. I figured this would give her a chance to decide which way Cupid's arrow points; and that it might lead either to a complete break between us, or bind us together in mutual love.

Although this separation seemed to bring us even closer together, Jane admits that she is still confused. She did confess, however, that "things weren't the same" with the other man; although she said "three weeks is hardly sufficient time to know."

I am sure she is sincere, but I can't help feeling she is clinging to a memory, more than a reality. I know she wants to be fair, but her indecision is making me pretty resentful.

DEAR D. J.: As I see the picture, when Jane met you she was "in love" with the other man—maybe because he kept her in uncertainty. And she more or less hung on to him by letters while also dating you this past year, in a "rebound" state of mind.

Your devotion was an anchor of sorts to her; and maybe she also hoped that her dating alliance with you might spur the other man into positive planning. In any case, you "fell in love" with her partly because you sensed she wasn't really available—her heart was involved elsewhere—hence it was a

Texas City Hit By 3 Bombings

BEAUMONT, Tex. (P) — Three bomb blasts shook separate sections of Beaumont Monday night, but no injuries were reported and police said they could find no reason for the bombings.

One bomb blew up the body of a truck owned by State Rep. Rufus Kilpatrick.

Another explosion damaged the entrance to St. Michael's Orthodox Church. The third blast broke some windows in a home.

Several weeks ago, bombs blasted the yards of two Negro men, but police said they didn't think there was any connection between those blasts and the latest incidents.

challenge to you, to beat the opposition if possible.

As of now, it seems the old admirer is as elusive as ever, or maybe more so; and that he and Jane are in fact growing farther apart—due, perhaps, to interim romancing in his life, as well as hers, since he's been away. Their latest stock-taking leaves Jane still in suspense, and again indecisive about what to do.

As for your sentiments—I doubt that you'd be pressing so urgently for explicit title to her heart, if you felt you had a clear field. It is my impression that both you and Jane are unduly dependent types she clinging to you, you clinging to her, for emotional security of sorts, and as joint defense against the possibility of having to be self-reliant socially.

Likely it is anxious self-interest, not real love of Jane, that makes you so jealous and managerial in the situation. At your age, with your military service still ahead, you probably don't aim to marry for years. So why don't you relax, and stop trying to run other people's lives, and just be grateful for here-and-now fellowship with your girl.

Ohio River Boat Finally Finds City To Have Her In Florida

BRADENTON, Fla. (P) — It looks like the venerable Ohio River packet Gordon C. Greene has at last found a safe berth here in Florida.

A general citizen's meeting last week approved a zoning change to accommodate the craft, and only two minor steps remain before she can be brought here.

Yet it was only last month that a storm of protest arose over plans for present owners to dock Sarasota.

Sarasota residents denounced plans to bring the colorful craft there, and in a Venice suburb, a group took out full-page newspaper advertisements saying they would fight the location.

But Bradenton apparently satisfied everyone. Kimball C. Atwood, whose land adjoins where the packet will be moored, said "We think the boat will be a good neighbor and we welcome her."

As to the protests, Atwood said that neither city "has a place on their gulf shore for such a boat. It would overshadow everything."

He said there were no objections at last week's meeting to plans by the owners, a Southern syndicate, to make of her a combination restaurant, theater and museum.

Atwood said the only remaining steps are U.S. Engineers permission for dredging a spot for her close to shore, and obtaining a submerged land lease.

The proud old craft, which carried cargo and passengers on nearly every river in the Ohio Valley, was retired in 1947 and sold in 1952.

Plans to make her a hotel at Portsmouth, Ohio, didn't work out. As a restaurant in Owensboro, Ky., she was no success.

Then the new owners purchased her and started moving under tow down the Ohio to the Mississippi.

Right now, she's berthed at Addis, La., near Baton Rouge, where she is gainfully employed in filming of a motion picture.

When that's finished, it will take

WASHINGTON — Senators appear ready to review — perhaps investigate — handling of Middle East problems by both the Eisenhower and Truman administrations. Neither is going to come out of this looking brilliant. Both have pumped aid into the area. Both have done some piecemeal planning. Both played by ear. Neither can be said to have had a real Middle East policy. The new Eisenhower program — judging from the vagueness of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles on what it will do and how — seems less a policy than an appearance of action until a policy can be worked out.

The reasons for Middle East turmoil and lack of planning for long-range solutions by both administrations have roots that are complex and deep. They go far back and involve some American failures.

For example: Both administrations have failed to live up to the 1947 U.S. - British - French agreement that the three allies would take "immediate action" to stop violation of frontiers or armistice lines by Arabs or Israelis. Those violations have been committed constantly by Jews and Arabs.

Neither administration came close to working out a solution for the resettlement of the 900,000 Arab refugees from the Arab-Israeli war of 1948. They are still homeless, scattered in Arab countries around Israel's borders. Most of the 70 million Arabs live under wretched conditions, cause enough for unrest. But their rulers, suspicious of one another, are united only in their hatred of the new Jewish state of Israel created in 1948.

Arab intellectuals and students are discontented. They recognize the condition of their people, the absence of solutions, and the lack of opportunity and security for Arabs in general and themselves in particular.

The West's need for oil is one reason it can't afford to let communism have the Middle East. But little wealth trickles down to the masses from the fortunes in revenues handed over yearly by the oil companies to the ruling dynasties.

Most Middle East observers will probably agree the best hope for a solution is in long-range planning. Congress is opposed to neither the Truman nor Eisenhower administration has bucked Congress on this.

Even if they did, the lack of stability in Middle East governments would be a primary stumbling block to giving long-term aid. If this dilemma can be solved, it will be an international miracle. That's the economic background.

Meanwhile, Arab rulers like Egypt's President Nasser use a political device to divert their people's attention from the failure of the leadership to improve their condition or give them a sense of security.

They do it by appealing to their people's nationalism, their hatred of colonialism, and their prejudices against the Jews of Israel. But the nationalist and anti-colonial themes would be invalidated if they didn't have strong foundations in fact and memory.

The Arabs don't have to remember any further back than the years after World War I when the British and French sought to control and dominate the Middle East, and did for a good while.

So long as this country's two main parties were a forceful influence in the area it could afford to sit back and not worry about the approach of communism. To push into the Middle East then might have jeopardized the Western alliance.

The Truman and Eisenhower administrations apparently felt compelled even to avoid criticizing the colonialism of its allies for fear of alienating them. But the failure to do so, in the eyes of many Arabs, could only help

Northeast Ohio Sees Need To Tap Lake Erie Water

CLEVELAND — A recently-completed year-long engineering survey shows that inland areas of northeastern Ohio must plan immediately to tap Lake Erie to meet their future water needs.

A report on the survey said the eight-county area around Cleveland will more than double present water usage by 1980 and faces a deficiency by that time of 1,150 million gallons a day, or 90 per cent of present usage.

The study was made for the Lake Erie Watershed Conservation Foundation and financed by a $17,500 Cleveland Foundation grant. It was conducted by the Stanley Engineering Co. of Chicago.

Offshore cribs near Avon Lake, Fairport and Ashtabula to serve pipeline and reservoir systems inland from those points were proposed by the engineering firm.

Initial construction of this project was estimated to cost 56 million dollars. The report said expansion to meet the needs by the year 2000 would boost the total cost to 200 million dollars.

The project was described as "economically feasible" by the Chicago firm.

Counties included in the survey are Cuyahoga, Ashtabula, Geauga,

Lake, Lorain, Medina, Portage and Summit.

The report said the 1950 population of 2,139,500 in this area would be increased by 60 per cent in 1980 and 125 per cent in 2000. It was estimated that the present water demand of 1,281 million gallons daily would jump to 2,650 million by 1980 and 4,250 by 2000.

Untapped ground water supplies are "extremely limited," the report said.

"It is evident that, to meet future demands, the predominant future source of supply must be Lake Erie," it added. "The lake represents a convenient and virtually inexhaustible supply of relatively pure and soft, cold water."

Engineer Frank W. Edwards said in his resume of the 66-page report that the Lake Erie source would be needed as early as 1959 in part of the area studied.

"Lake Erie water can be delivered to areas located away from the lake at reasonable costs which even now would be competitive with costs of water from other sources," Edwards continued.

The report pointed out that more than a third of the industrial plants of the state are located in the eight-county area surveyed.

Chrysler Is Sued After Car Mishap

TOLEDO — The Automobile Club Insurance Co. of Columbus has filed suit against Chrysler Corp. in federal court here in connection with an auto accident in which a Sylvania woman was injured.

The insurance company wants liability fixed on Chrysler on grounds the rear axle of a Chrysler automobile "disintegrated," causing the car to overturn.

Robert C. Palicki and his wife, Anna, had purchased the car new in September, 1954, and the accident occurred two years later in Tennessee.

Mrs. Palicki asked for $7,500 for personal injuries; Palicki asked for $166 in damages and the insurance company asked for $757 in repairs.

Bell Firm Gets 2 Missile Pacts

BUFFALO, N. Y. — Bell Aircraft Corp. has announced that it has been awarded two Air Force contracts totaling $22,040,407 for Rascal guided missiles.

The contracts were awarded by the Air Materiel Command at Wright - Patterson Field, Dayton.

As the prime contractor, Bell has the responsibility for the entire Rascal weapons system. This includes air frames, guidance, rocket engines, launching and ground equipment, flight testing and personnel training.

The Rascal missiles are designed to be carried aloft by Air Force strategic bombers and released miles from their objectives.

In fact, most Americans are tired of all these queer peoples who want aid but will only take it unconditionally, with no strings attached, as though they were doing us a very great favor by taking our money.

Perhaps that is why the Mad Bomber became such a tremendous news sensation. He provided an escape from the wordiness of political pronouncements and a relief from the dry rot which has set in among those who are supposed to have ideals. The President's Second Inaugural, while a noble document that could bring comfort to the Moroccans and Algerians, did not stir the American soul which would have cheered with unmistakable furor, a 10 per cent income tax cut across the board.

George Humphrey has always been something of a philosophic economist among businessmen and is nobody's goose who will follow a line worked out in committee.

Officers said Smith was seized at his home when he alighted from a taxi.

Road To Ohio Cage Glory Is Getting Steep

At Least 5 Top Teams
See Records Sullied
First Time This Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The road to Ohio's high school basketball playoffs is getting steeper.

At least five teams—three in the top 10—saw their Class AA records sullied for the first time last week, and The Associated Press ratings were jumbled by the impact.

The swashbuckling deeds of Columbus East in the last two weeks sent the former state champs into 10th place in the poll despite a 7-5 record—the poorest ever to rise into the elite list.

Two weeks ago the Capital City club defeated Lockland Wayne's Class A powerhouse and then forced champion Middletown into an overtime before surrendering. Last week East banged into second place Columbus North and emerged with a 52-50 double-overtime conquest.

Zanesville, fourth last week with 12 straight, was halted 68-63 by Newark, and Tiffin Columbus's seventh-placers stopped at 11 as sixth-place Shelby triumphed 69-65.

Other big sprees to end were Cincinnati Roger Bacon's 11-game streak in a 59-57 overtime at the hands of Joe Martin's Lockland Wayne team, and Toledo Clay's 11-game stretch, which foundered on a 48-39 loss to Toledo Whitmer.

Dave Murray of Steubenville's unbeaten Big Red also saw a long streak end. He missed his first free throw against Bellaire St. John after making 25 in a row. The Big Red didn't miss it, however, as it triumphed 96-69 for its 10th conquest.

One streak everyone was glad to see end was a string of 32 straight losses suffered by Cumberland of Guernsey County. The team hadn't won since the opener of the 1955-56 campaign, but Myron Rhinehart scored 30 points to clinch a 68-58 verdict over Seneca.

Cleveland Cathedral Latin, which has matched state champion Middletown's 13-game winning streak this year—but is far shy of the 38 straight the Butler Countians have compiled—breezed into second place and Canton McKinley's twice-beaten Bulldogs into third.

Only one change popped up in Class A, Lowellville jumping from 11th to fourth as Burton dropped out.

Here is how Ohio's sports editors rate the state's top Class AA and Class A basketball teams this week.

Lopez Says Chisox Similar To Tribe: Good Pitch, No Hit

Editor's Note: Following is another in a series of managerial news of the 1957 baseball season written under the manager's own byline.

By AL LOPEZ
TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—For the first time in seven years I'll be wearing a uniform other than that of the Cleveland Indians when I assume my duties as manager of the Chicago White Sox next month. But it seems to me the setting will be the same. Good pitching and uncertain hitting.

I don't mean to say that the White Sox will be a punchless outfit in 1957. Far from it. But the team right now lacks a power hitter, a real good No. 4 batter. That is our greatest need, as I see it. You never can have enough pitching but I'm satisfied with fellows like Billy Pierce, Jack Harshman, Dick Donovan, Jim Wilson, Bob Keegan, Dixie Howell, Paul Lapalme and Ellis Kinder. We're also bringing up several good looking youngsters, one or two of whom might help us this year.

From what I saw of the White Sox last year, they were a sound ball club. I know they beat the Indians 12 times in 22 games. They would have beaten us out for second place if they had found some way to stall that mid-season slump that seems to plague them every year. Had they been able to avoid it they might have given Casey Stengel something to worry about.

One of our chief objectives is to strengthen our bench. I think Walt Droppa can be used effectively at first base. I like the possibilities of Jim Marshall, a lefthanded hitting rookie who was at Memphis last year. Cleveland had good reports on him. Nellie Fox at second, and Luis Aparicio at short, are the best men at those positions. At third we have Fred Hatfield and Tom Brown to alternate against right and lefthanded pitching.

I like our catching although a lefthanded receiver would add maneuverability to our bench. We have Les Moss to help Sherm Lollar but we probably will carry a third catcher next season, rather than try to get by with just two of them.

I haven't seen many of our rookies play, but we may have a few surprises in camp. Norm Larker, a big first baseman whom we drafted from Brooklyn's St. Paul club, is a real battler and from reports I've gotten on him I want to give him a real look-over. He hit 309 last season. That big boy, Ron Jackson, has possibilities and could strengthen our first base situation. He batted over .300 at Vancouver in the Pacific Coast League after the Sox farmed him when his two-year bonus stay was up last spring.

I have great curiosity about that youngster, Jim Landis, an outfielder from Memphis, and Marshall, who hit 28 home runs in the Southern Assn.

What I'll be looking for most among our newcomers is a second pitcher with ability to relieve every day; another outfielder, preferably a righthanded batter; another infielder capable of playing third, short or second base; and a lefthanded hitting catcher. If we can come up with those, then watch out for the White Sox.

EUB Squads Earn Wins In Church Loop

In county church league basketball last night, Pontious EUB cagers maintained their winning ways by posting a 97 to 70 win over Trinity Lutheran and Ringgold EUB edged St. Paul Lutherans of Ashville in a close 60 to 59 test.

Don Hinton and Bob Goodman paced the Pontious attack with 28 points each. Cecil Galloway was high for the losers with 29 tallies.

Ringgold, trailing 12 points at the end of the first quarter, came back strong in the three remaining periods to squeeze out a narrow victory.

Norman McPherson, hitting for 27 points, was high man for the winners. Dick Smith had 23 for the losers.

PONTIOUS currently leads the league with a record of four wins and one loss. Ringgold is second with three victories and two defeats.

St. Paul is in third spot with two wins and three losses and Trinity is in the cellar with one victory and four defeats.

Walnut Five, Washington Set For Big Game

Wednesday night will see the climax of Pickaway County's annual junior high tournament which has been in progress for the last two weeks.

Starting out with 15 teams, the field has been narrowed to two squads, Walnut and Washington.

Coming out victorious in their previous tourney meetings, the two high-caliber outfits will tangle in what should be an interesting game at 8 p. m. in Walnut Township gym.

Two other strong teams, Saltcreek and Williamsport, will battle it out for consolation honors at 7 p. m. The first three place squads will receive trophies.

The Walnut junior cagers earned a place in the finals by posting victories over New Holland and Saltcreek. Washington posted wins over Jackson, Pickaway and Deer creek.

Suspended Cager Facing 2 Tests

CINCINNATI (AP)—Connie Dierking, suspended basketball star for the University of Cincinnati, has two tests to pass today. They involve the confidence of his coach and of his teammates.

Coach George Smith said, "We'll have another talk about it all. But he has to promise to live up to our standards. And he'll also have to go before our team and state his case."

Smith broke news of Dierking's indefinite suspension just before a game with Miami University Saturday.

Current Drought In Southwest Rated Worst On U. S. Record

Dry, Dusty Wind Brings Despair, Big Farm Loss

Additional Millions Of Acres May Be Ruined By Summer

Parts of the western and southwestern United States now are engulfed in the worst drought on record.

The weather bureau sums up the situation this way: "The severity of the present drought has in general equalled or exceeded that of any other drought occurring in the same area since the beginning of precipitation records about the middle of the nineteenth century."

"Tree-ring data suggests that there have been no droughts of substantially greater severity in western and southwestern United States since about 1670, and perhaps not since 1570."

The current drought began in the summer of 1951 and continues to grip a vast area of the country east of the Rocky Mountains from Texas to the Dakotas. Similar conditions exist over much of Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Montana, Missouri and parts of Nevada.

FEDERAL weathermen pinpoint the "core" of the drought in west-central Texas and eastern New Mexico, although most of the area west of the Mississippi river has been touched to a greater or lesser degree.

The conditions of the current drought, say meteorologists, are characteristic of recurring droughts that periodically affect arid, semi-arid, and the margins of subhumid regions.

The United States has suffered three major droughts in its history—the current, one which is by far the worst, and the shorter droughts of 1934-1936 and 1892-1894.

In 1952, when the current drought began to be felt over wide areas, the nationwide precipitation was the lowest since 1934. Weather bureau records show that in October of that year, there were no floods reported in the entire country—for the first time since November, 1939.

The central and southern portions of the plains states continued to suffer rainfall shortages in 1953, although some relief was experienced in the northern portion of this region.

parts of Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas in February, 1953. By the end of June, a critical period for crops, there were large sections of the Southwest which had received less than 10 per cent of their normal rains for six consecutive weeks—and longer in scattered areas.

HIGH temperatures and hot, dry winds added to the destruction. The Rio Grande river at Laredo, Tex., dried up for the first time in recorded history. In the summer of 1954, many points in the plains states suffered one of the hottest and driest spells on record.

The following year the drought pattern in the Southwest persisted while, for the nation as a whole, precipitation was near normal. Continued dry weather marked the opening of 1956. January and February were both deficient in moisture over much of the Southwest, and March was extremely dry.

During the six months ended in March, less than one inch of precipitation fell in eastern New Mexico and extreme western Texas and less than two inches in a larger area including southern Arizona, most of New Mexico, and western Texas, Oklahoma, most of western and southwestern Kansas, and southeastern Colorado.

In Nebraska the topsoil was dry and powdery in the central and eastern portions.

In these areas where drought persisted the topsoil was vulnerable to wind erosion. According to agriculture department officials, nearly two million acres of land already have been damaged by wind action in the Great Plains last year.

ABOUT ONE-THIRD of this damage was in Kansas. Also, nearly

Sugar Beet Planting Allotments Hiked

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department has announced the second upward revision in 1957 sugar beet planting allotment for producing states.

The agency originally had set such allotments at 885,000, then increased to 932,000 and later to 950,000 acres.

These increases were made to help meet rising demands.

The latest revision compared with the previous one, respectively, by states included Ohio 22,736 and 22,304.

Cleveland Eyes Big State Share

CLEVELAND (AP)—Service Director Louis L. Drasler disclosed Monday that Cleveland may ask the state to pay the entire 10 per cent share of matching funds for construction of interstate highways.

The federal government will pay 90 per cent and the state has offered to split the remaining cost with cities, each putting up 5 per cent for engineering plans.

250,000 acres of growing wheat have been seriously damaged by wind, about 80 per cent of which was reported for Kansas and Colorado.

This winter and next spring, said officials, an additional 29 million acres of land will be in a condition to blow with the wind.

Nearly 25 million acres or 86 per cent of this land subject to dam-

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Think how amazed Robert Louis Stevenson, poet-essayist of the late nineteenth century, would be if he could see the modern maze of highways that serve America's 75,000,000 motorists.

In 1896 he wondered about the magnet-power of a highway, on which only horse-drawn carriages and carts were the vehicles.

"When a road is once built," he wrote, "it is a strange thing how it collects traffic, how every year as it goes on, more and more people are found to ride thereon, and others are raised up to repair and perpetuate it, and keep it alive."

The ever expanding number of words to describe roads would be another source of surprise for Stevenson. Even the newest dictionary does not contain all the words that picture our roads.

HIGHWAY had been in general usage, but now it is only one of many terms we all use. There are Expressways and Freeways, Thruways and Skyways, Turnpikes and Toll Roads.

BUT NO matter what they are called, modern highways are vital. They are indispensable arteries of communications and transportation.

In the American scheme, highways are lifelines of the economy—they are used for the movement of goods and as recreational gateways.

Along these roads are built a vast number of businesses that Robert Louis Stevenson would have found out of his range of knowledge. These businesses have grown as a necessary adjunct to necessary highways. They provide the services needed by millions of mobile Americans every day—food, shelter, refreshment, recreation, comforts, souvenirs, supplies. In fact, every step taken toward making our highways more modern and faster increases the need for these services, and for the notices along the way to motorists telling them where they can be found and what they have to offer.

Stevenson would marvel at this vital network of services for people on the move—gas stations, restaurants, etc.—providing millions of jobs and accounting for more than $25 billion a year in purchases. And being a logical man, he would be amazed to learn that even while these businesses become more necessary, there are groups that are trying to destroy them.

Both in the federal Congress and in many states, bills will be introduced this year to either rule all private businesses off the major roads or to prevent them from advertising—which would have the same effect.

Drive, to Stevenson, who noted the drive of a free people to raise up their roads and repair and perpetuate them, and keep them alive, the modern network of roads would be amazing—and so would the efforts of those who try to isolate them from the needs and the wants of the people who use them.

'Intrusion' By FBI Brings Conviction Reversal For Red

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has reversed the conviction of Ben Gold on charges of filing a false non-Communist oath under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The court divided 6-3 in ordering a new trial for the Russian-born former president of the International Fur and Leatherworkers Union.

Gold's conviction was reversed "because of official intrusion into the privacy of the jury."

Near the close of the government's case in Gold's trial in U.S. District Court here, FBI agents contacted three members of the jury or their families in connection with an unrelated case.

The Supreme Court said in a brief unsigned order that the fact that the intrusion was "unintentional" does not remove the effect of the intrusion.

Justice Reed wrote a brief dissenting opinion, in which Justices Burton and Clark joined. Clark wrote a similar dissenting opinion in his own name.

Gold received a prison sentence of one to three years. The U. S. Court of Appeals here last March upheld the conviction by a 4-4 tie vote. The jury convicted him of charges of falsely denying he was a Communist party member and a supporter of its policies when he signed the non-Red oath in August 1950.

An avowed Communist for 30 years and a one-time member of the party's central committee, from the party a few days before he signed the oath.

The government contended the resignation was without real meaning. Gold resigned as President of the Fur and Leather Workers in October 1954. The union since has been merged into a meatcutters union.

New York City Bans Welcomes For Saud, Tito

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner has barred an official city welcome for King Saud of Saudi Arabia, who arrived today en route to Washington for conferences with President Eisenhower.

The mayor also has banned any city welcome if Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia ever visits here.

Wagner said:

"There appears to be two visits by foreign rulers that may begin here."

"One of these is the dictator of Yugoslavia. We don't want him in New York because he's a Communist and because he's anti-religious. As far as we're concerned he'll get no consideration here."

"And the same goes for Saud, and double, too."

Seabees Building In Antarctic Anew

MCMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (AP)—Navy Seabees are disembarking onto the ice on the opposite side of this frozen continent to build another U.S. science station.

The new outpost will be built on a 15-foot-thick ice shelf over the Weddell Sea. The site is about 2,000 miles across Antarctica from McMurdo Sound.

Ten scientists plan to live and work at the station during the International Geophysical Year that begins in July.
